

We've not given up on Tunnel #1. In fact, we're working diligently to restore service through the hill and back into the Noyo Canyon from Fort Bragg. We've completely re-engineered the whole west face of this hill, an unexpected task, and now we're working to restore service through it. Tunnel #1 was completed in 1893 and was dug by hand by Chinese laborers. In fact, when C.R. Johnson employed these hardworking folks, locals were in an uproar. He asked the Chinese tunnel workers to step aside, and employed the locals - the next day the Chinese were back on the job. Had it not been for them the railroad would have stopped here.
